Wofford Faculty:

See the media query below from Current magazine, a student publication overseen by Newsweek. If you have ideas of theses/papers that might fit this description that we could pitch to them, please let us know. The reporter's deadline is June 14 at 6 p.m.

QUERY: Current magazine, a student publication overseen by Newsweek, is looking for creative theses. Amusingly hyper-specific, clever, profound, or just plain interesting -- we're looking to compile a list of theses that regular people might actually want to read. What's eligible: any long paper/thesis submitted by an undergraduate in 2006-2007, or being prepared for submission during the 2007-2008 school year. Previous submissions have included: "'That Was Totally Intense!' A Study of Emphatic Adverbial Modifiers in Male and Female Speech;" "Sensual Guru on the Move -- Filling in the Void: Girls and Young Women Understanding the Art of Sexuality"; "Instead of Trying to Get Rid of Them, Why Not Think of a Way to Beautify Sex Shops and Educate the Masses?" WOFFORD COLLEGE
OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

TO: Wofford Community
FROM: Dr. Benjamin Dunlap, President
DATE: June 8, 2007
SUBJECT: Guidelines for Use of the Wofford College Extensis Photographic and Graphic System

1. Almost every office and department on Wofford's campus uses photographs or other graphic materials in its publicity efforts in the course of a year. Recently the Communications and Marketing Office has acquired, at considerable cost, the Extensis Photographic and Graphic System, also known in some circles as the Digital Asset Management System (DAMS). It is a database containing thousands of photos and other graphic materials that are useful in publishing printed materials and in postings on Wofford's website.
2. Communications and Marketing Guidance Document No. 5-2007 Subject "Guidelines for Use of the Wofford College Extensis Photographic and Graphic System" dated June 8, 2007, is attached for your guidance in gaining access to and using this system. Please review it carefully and comply with its provisions. It promises to make our publications and website more attractive and effective.

3. If you have questions, please contact Pat Smith in the Communications and Marketing Office at 597-4183 or e-mail smithpa@wofford.edu.

Thank you for your cooperation in this matter.
