Lizzie Richards '23 spent the spring semester making sure there was a place for everything, and everything was in its place.

Richards, a history and art history double major from Columbia, South Carolina, was part of Wofford curator Dr. Youmi Efurd's team working on a relocation and storage project in the Rosalind Sallenger Richardson Center for the Arts. The project is supported by an Institute of Museum and Library Services Inspire! Grant for Small Museums.

“I’m doing inventory and preparing the room for new storage racks,” says Richards. “I want to use as much space as I can in a sustainable way.”

The grant funded the purchase of the storage racks and the relocation of items to be stored there. Richards has been filling the new racks with a wide variety of works.

Wofford selects new VP for campus life and student development

Dr. Sandra Rouse is joining the administration at Wofford College this summer to serve as its vice president for campus life and student development and dean of students.

Wofford College is welcoming Dr. Sandra Rouse as its new vice president for campus life and student development and dean of students. She will assume the role on July 18.

Rouse is joining the Wofford community after eight years at Newberry College, where she has served as Newberry’s dean of students and as a member of the president’s leadership team for the past six years.

“Dr. Rouse has demonstrated a commitment to enhancing student experiences, and we look forward to having her leadership at Wofford College,” said Dr. Nayef Samhat, Wofford’s president. “She has extensive experience in all of the areas that she’ll be responsible for at Wofford while exhibiting a knowledge of current trends and new and innovative approaches.”

During her career, Rouse has been responsible for residence life, judicial affairs, security, wellness, counseling services, student engagement, sorority and fraternity life, the first-year experience, campus recreation, leadership programs and postal services. She also has supervisory experience as assistant director of student advising and a recruitment center, director of first-year and retention programs, and associate dean of students.
