Quest. 9. Who have been expelled from the connection this year?

Benjamin Young, Asa Pattie, William Brandon, Abner Dood—4.

Quest. 10. Who have died this year?

1. Benjamin Jones, a native of South Carolina, born about seven miles from Georgetown, said state. He was admitted upon trial in the year 1801, and was stationed upon Richford circuit. In 1802, Charlton. In 1803, Bush River. In 1804, Bladen circuit, where he was subject to those trials, either from his birth or early in life. He was found dead in two feet water. He was about thirty years of age. Our dear brother was always walked as the Christian and minister, and having made himself acceptable to the South Carolina Conference, of which he was a worthy, useful, upright, and holy member. It was in the latter end of January, 1804, he changed worlds; and we hope the cross for the crown, and suffering for rest. In connection with his death a singular circumstance occurred: A person who had traveled with him some weeks was stopped by the lameness of his horse the day Benjamin Jones died: the same young man filled the station, and his horse only felt or showed his lameness for that day.

The providences of God are a great deep, and his ways are exceeding astounding. Till we shall see eye to eye, and enter into the eternal sanctuary of the Lord, his death may appear unim and alarming to his friends; yet divine Wisdom in mercy may have taken him from the evil and sufferings to come, supplying his place with a young man, a faithful, flaming witness in experience, in whom he sufered for Christ’s sake. The manner and circumstances of Benjamin Jones’ death will be taken into view as a reason why we have not his dying words and testimony; but his affliction was such that it taught him, and he appeared to learn—

…”Be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh.”

2. Moses Smith, born in Liberty county, on Great Pee Dee, November 10, 1771. He was admitted on trial in 1792, and filled the following stations: Bush River 1792, San­tee 1793, Union 1794, Holston 1795, Edisto 1796, Santee 1797, Charleston 1798, Anson 1799, missionary to Natchez, 1800, 1801, 1802, 1803, 1804. The fifth day of April, 1804, he died at Natchez, Claiborne county. And what shall we say of this good man! What motive was it that induced him to travel, and suffer so much, and so long! He had been subject to those trials, either from his birth or early in life. He was about thirty years of age. Our dear brother was a man of signal solemnity of coun tenance and manners, deeply serious; of a gentle mind and Christian spirit, having always walked as the Christian and minister, and having made himself accept-
Minutes for 1805.

Carolina and Georgia, preaching day and night: his feeble body began to fail, and he appeared to be superannuated, a few years before he went to the Natchez country. It is reported, that when he found his difficulties, after travelling six-hundred miles to Cumberland, he took a canoe and put his booth, and he paddled himself off from Cumberland into the Ohio River, and took his passage six or eight hundred miles in the meanders of the Great River: what he met with on the Ohio River, and took his passage six hundred miles; amidst Indian nations and throning, a journey of six hundred miles; and he, therefore, sent him from the Western Conference, that he said he was taken ill in the wilderness, a journey of six hundred miles; and he, therefore, sent him from the Western Conference, that he said he was taken ill in the wilderness.

The author of these memoirs thought that he had gone far in the character and praise of Tobias Gibson: but by appealing to the yearly Conference in South Carolina, some of the elders present thought that Tobie Gibson did for many years preach, profess, possess, and practise Christian perfection and that those who were acquainted with him must be impressed with his depth of piety; that infidelity itself would before such a holy, loving, and devoted man of God.

3. Nicholas Watters, a native of Maryland, born in Anne Arundel county, November 30th, 1759. He descends from an ancient and respectable family, and was one of seven brethren; John, Henry, Godfrey, Nicholas, Stephen Water, and William, that were among first of those whose hearts and houses were opened to receive the Methodist preachers, when they came into Harford county, in the aforesaid state; and several of the brethren early became official and local preachers. Nicholas Watters has been in the travelling and local connections from the year 1778 to the present; and Nicholas Watters from or near the same date, and has been stationed as follows: Maryland, 1778; Hanover, 1777 and 1778; Union South Carolina, 1794; Selevud, 1799; Hillsborough, 1800, 1801, and 1802; Winchester, Virginia, 1801, Lancaster, 1802. Brook River, Georgia, 1803. Charleston, South Carolina, 1804. Here he sickness, and here he died in peace and triumph on Friday, August 10, in the sixty-fifth year of his age. He had his difficulties in his passage through life, both in his first and second marriage, as the cares of his first prevented his going sooner into the travelling connection, so his last called him into a close domestic life: notwithstanding this, he highly approved of a travelling ministry. He was a man of courage, and ready in conversation upon the things of God. He had good ideas, and appeared to possess greater sentiments than he could always express in the name. His life was calm, his temper gracious, his manners simple and good. It was hoped, as he was nearly superannuated in 1803, that a more local station, such as Charleston, where he should not be exposed to the changes of weather, might contribute to his health; and also that his advanced stage of life, might be favourable, and not subject him as much as younger men to the prevailing fever; but his dying words will cheer his surviving friends, and lead us to hope all is well, and that God, in his unerring wisdom, was pleased to call his servant home at that time and place. He was heard to speak these submissive and expressive words: “I am not afraid to die, if it be the will of God; I desire to depart, and to be with Christ; the church will sustain no loss by my death, for the Lord will supply my place, with a man that will be more useful. Thanks be to God, through his grace I have continued to live and to labour faithfully to the end.”

“Farewell, vain world, I go home, My Jesus smiles, and bids me come.”

So said, lived, laboured, suffered, and died Nicholas Watters. The greatest men upon earth that have lived, do live, or shall live, ought to know and say the same. God will provide for his own church, in men and means of his own appointment. Heaven and earth are the Lord’s, and the fulness thereof, with the residue of the Spirit. In him, to him, and for him are all things. The Lord will provide. To whom, with the eternal Son and ever blessed and eternal Spirit, be all honour and praise, now, henceforth, and for evermore. Bennet Kendrick, his colleague in the ministry, reported to the South Carolina Conference; that Nicholas Watters was particularly attentive in visiting the sick, and would not let a favourable opportunity slip; frequently passing through the heats and travelling a considerable distance through the snow, and it is not improbable but he might have taken the fever in this. He exercised a great degree of humanity in his Christian and ministerial duties, and this had been his manner of living both in town and country, both in his travelling and located state of the ministry.

William Watters writes as follows in behalf of his brother Nicholas:

“The above account of my dear deceased, as I know in substance to the truth. This is the last of Nicholas Watters, of whom I am the youngest, and two sisters, all through the mercy of God, profess to be converted to the Lord Jesus Christ in less than nine months of one another; and joined the Methodists in the year of our Lord 1771. My oldest brother and both my sisters have departed this life for some time, but lived and died in the Lord, and in the Methodist-Church. Those of us yet alive, I have good hope, will never look back; but hold on to the end. My brother Nicholas, I think, prior to our hearing the gospel, was not as moral as some others of the family. But as far back as I can remember, he was more given (in the time of our ignorance) to converse about religion. His conversion was, to appearance, not so deep, nor his conversion so clear, as some in the family, and though he was very ready in private to express his thoughts, yet he had for some time but a small gift in prayer or exhortation; yet he would not be discouraged, but took great labour in holiness of life, and in the performance of his duties, till the death of his wife, when he entered the travelling connection, to which he showed a very great attachment to the end: and has gone, I have no doubt, to receive his reward.

“As I was the first American that entered the travelling connection, so I have often observed, that the first shall be the least, as few great things in his neighbourhood till the death of his wife, when he entered the travelling connection, to which he showed a very great attachment to the end: and has gone, I have no doubt, to receive his reward.
solid and deep. No pains were spared by him, neither would small difficulties ever keep him back from places and appointments of worship, where he might obtain any comfort, encouragement, or instruction: in this manner of life he persevered, until he began to instruct others by exhortation and preaching.

When he died, of which he died was an inflammatory sore throat, taken while travelling in the state of New-Jersey. At first it did not appear alarming, yet he could not free himself from it, but continued to linger until the 16th of December, when (after preaching at Linganore Chapel in Maryland) the disorder increased, and in a few days confined him to the house, and then to that bed from which he never rose. From this time to the 25th of February (at which time he died) he suffered exceedingly, in all which he manifested great patience and resignation; he was not once known to murmur. His whole mind was employed on religion, and even when a little light headed, he was exhorting, meeting classes, and praising God. Being roused from this stupor, his faculties seemed to resume their usual strength, his mind and conversation were again in heaven. He indicated his approaching dissolution by telling his friends that they would not be long together, that they would soon be done with their troubles.

He had such strong communion of soul with God, that he frequently broke out and rejoiced aloud. Some of his last words to his relations standing by, were, "The Lord smil'd upon you," then as long as he could articulate he said, "Jesus—Jesus—angels—angels beckon—there are two, I'll go,"—and so he died, and we trust he went to heaven.

5. John Durbin,—who was born January 10, 1778, in Frederick county, state of Maryland. Although he had pious parents, he showed very little concern for religion, until about the age of 24 years; however, he gradually treated it with respectful decency: his natural disposition was volatile, and not free from vice. About the year 1800 he was powerfully convicted for sin. His parents having been members of the Methodist Church for more than thirty years had raised him in the discipline and adoration of the Lord: he therefore was no stranger to the duties of religion, so that when he became a penitent, he cordially embraced and diligently applied himself to the means of grace. About the August following, he found peace to his soul, it soon appeared that his religion was thoroughly established.
