Come out to the seal of Old Main to see the T-Nacity crew perform an awesome hip-hop/break dance show!Contact: Katherine SteinmetzEmail: steinmetzkr@wofford.eduTelephone/Extension: 864-597-4643Thinking Like an Island Sustainability Student Presentations*Date/Time: 2/1/2017 1:00:00 PMLocation: Olin TheaterCost: Free

Details: This January, 20 students spent the last three weeks developing models for potential sustainability projects that could be implemented within the current parameters and design for the future projects of the Northside Development Group. The students studied and gained hands on learning of best practices in sustainability from experts on three Hawaiian Islands, a state in our union that is leading the way in sustainability measures. Five groups of students will present their models to the community on Wed., Feb. 1, at 1 p.m., in the Olin Theater on the Wofford campus. The topics for sustainability practices in the Northside community include: School Garden Program at Cleveland Academy of Leadership; Watershed restoration for daylighting of Butterfly Creek; Emergency resiliency and energy efficiency for new T.K. Gregg recreation center; Community Infrastructure: internet access and locations for use; Community Infrastructure: personal dwellings energy independence / efficiency; Community social cohesion: organic playgrounds. I hope you will be able to attend and invite others to join you. As they say in Hawaii, mahalo nui (thank you very much) for your time, and aloha (best wishes).

Details: "He Named Me Malala is a 2015 American documentary film directed by Davis Guggenheim. The film presents the young Pakistani female activist and Nobel Peace Prize laureate Malala Yousafzai, who has spoken out for the rights of girls, especially the right to education, since she was very young. The film also recounts how she miraculously survived and has become even more eloquent in her quest after being hunted down and shot by a Taliban gunman as part of the organization's violent opposition to girls' education in the Swat Valley in Pakistan. The title refers to the Afghani folk hero Malalai of Maiwand, after whom her father named her."

Re: Wofford Passwords

On Wednesday morning, Feb. 15, Information Technology Services (ITS) will turn on myWofford's self-service password reset capability. When you login to myWofford on Wednesday, you will be instructed to set up "challenge questions" for your Wofford password. Once you set up your challenge questions, if you ever need to reset your password, you will be able to do so by correctly answering the questions.

We appreciate your patience as we work to simplify password resets. If you have questions about this change, please contact the IT Help Center.

PLEASE NOTE: Wofford ITS will never ask you for your password. Please do not share your password with anyone.

Wellness Wednesday - Heart Disease Prevention

Details: What causes heart disease and how do we prevent it? Unfortunately, genetics often plays a large role in heart disease, along with age, cigarette smoking, diabetes, high cholesterol, weight, and blood pressure. However, even if all the odds are against you, there are still things you can do to help prevent it. 1. Hit the gym. I'm sounds cliché?, but exercise, even if it's only for 15 minutes a day, will help with your blood pressure, high cholesterol, and weight. 2. Eat your fruits and veggies. Eating Chick-Fil-A every day is nice, but it will not help decrease your chance of heart disease. Substitute those fries for a piece of fruit. 3. Don't smoke. Heart disease will not be the only thing you are preventing. Save your body and your bank account. For more information, visit

Subject: MESSAGE FROM THE PROVOST: HEDS Sexual Assault Campus Climate survey
Date: February 16, 2017 at 1:19 PM
To: Wofford Staff and Faculty WoffordStaff@Wofford.Edu

Wofford Faculty and Staff:

Starting next week, Wofford will participate in the Higher Education Data Sharing Consortium (HEDS) Sexual Assault Campus Climate survey. The goal of this survey is to give Wofford leadership insight into our students' perceptions of Wofford's climate on unwanted sexual contact and sexual assault. We also want to know how our students think the college addresses and responds to sexual assault and whether or how often they have experienced unwanted sexual contact or sexual assault. We have asked that all students participate, whether or not they have experienced unwanted sexual contact or sexual assault.

All responses will be completely anonymous. No name will be connected in any way with responses to the survey, and any identifying information from the computer on which the student takes the survey will be removed before we receive the data.

The survey is completely voluntary, and the student may choose to exit and not submit their responses at any point prior to clicking the final submit button. They also may skip any question.

We understand that it may be emotionally difficult for students to answer some of the questions on this survey. Should they wish to talk with someone further, they may access information about campus, local and national resources for unwanted sexual contact, sexual assault and relationship violence by clicking on the resources link at the bottom of each survey page. It will be available to them after they submit the survey as well.

I ask that you please mention the survey, and its importance, to your students. However, we want to be certain not to pressure anyone into taking this survey if they prefer not to participate.

We will use the results of the survey to inform and improve support, policies, and practices. If you have any questions, please contact Raymond Ruff, Director of Institutional Research and Special Projects.

Sincerely,

Mike Sosulski

Being Muslim in America: America, Muslims and the Middle East in a World of Conflict

Date/Time: 2/20/2017 7:00:00 PM

Location: Leonard Auditorium

Cost: Free and open to the public

Details: The American Muslim community finds itself in a precarious situation: On one hand, there are frequent acts of violence committed by extremist organizations. and on the other hand, the recent presidential cycle has witnessed talk of national registry for Muslims and an almost exclusive association of "Muslims" with "radicalism." Where do we go from here? Safi, professor of Islamic Studies at Duke University, is a leading Muslim public intellectual. He is the director of the Duke Islamic Studies Center and an award-winning teacher and speaker. This event is sponsored by the International and Foreign Language Education (IFLE) office of the U.S. Department of Education, in partnership with the Middle East and North African (MENA) studies program at Wofford College.

MANY-BODY FOR ANYBODY: A COMPUTATIONAL SCIENCE EXPLORATION OF THE PHYSICS OF MORE THAN ONE THING

Date/Time: 2/21/2017 11:10:00 AM

Location: Olin 213

Cost: Free

Details: Dr. Robert Panoff will be giving a computer science/physic related talk in Olin 213 on Tuesday, Feb. 21. See the talk's abstract below: Computational science continues to advance the accurate description and prediction of the dynamics of many-body systems with new applications, algorithms, and architectures. Moving from the researcher's workbench to the classroom, real-time model solutions and simulations are now possible in most every area of education and research in physics. These interactive learning environments help us to understand complex systems, while opening up new areas of learner-centered, group-oriented, discovery-based learning.

Many-Body for Anybody: A Computational Science Exploration of the Physics of More than One Thing

Date/Time: 2/21/2017 11:10:00 AM

Location: Olin 213

Cost: Free

Details: Dr. Robert Panoff will give a computer science/physics-related talk in Olin 213 on Tuesday, Feb. 21. See the talk's abstract below: Computational science continues to advance the accurate description and prediction of the dynamics of many-body systems with new applications, algorithms, and architectures. Moving from the researcher's workbench to the classroom, real-time model solutions and simulations are now possible in most every area of education and research in physics. These interactive learning environments help us to understand complex systems, while opening up new areas of learner-centered, group-oriented, discovery-based learning.

New Faculty Mentoring Luncheon (Topic: Tenure)

Details: The topic for the Feb. 23, new faculty mentoring luncheon will be the tenure review process. Mike Sosulski, Provost of the College, and Kaye Savage, Associate Professor and Chair of Environmental Studies and Chair of the Committee on Non-Curricular Faculty Concerns (which is a portion of the Tenure Committee), will join us to explain what the process involves and what types of documents faculty might be expected to prepare for the Tenure Committee. In addition, colleagues who successfully completed the tenure process recently will join us to discuss how they prepared. As at most institutions, there are a number of questions regarding the tenure review process and hopefully this discussion will address many of those issues. This lunch series serves as a mentoring program for junior faculty but any faculty or staff member is welcome to attend. Lunches for faculty in their first and second year of employment are paid for by the Provost's Office; other faculty members who are attending can purchase lunch from the Faculty and Staff Dining Room or bring a bag lunch. Anyone who has a meeting at the 11 a.m. hour is welcome to join us after their meeting concludes.

THE WHEELS ARE TURNING

Wofford offers students the opportunity to delve into the art of pottery

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (February 21, 2017) — Spending much of her time either on the soccer field or in training, Mayson Liner used this past January to return to one of her passions: art. An English major with a film and digital media concentration from Athens, Georgia, Liner has taken art courses throughout high school but hasn't had time to explore lenn., Liner took visual art courses throughout high school but hasn't had time in college — that is, until she took the “Functional Beauty: The Art and Craft of Pottery” course for Interim.

Led by Dr. Natalie Grinnell, professor of English, the course teaches the history and cultural significance of pottery through visits to arts centers and guest speakers. It also focuses on the hands-on creative process of hand-building and wheel-throwing pottery.

“It’s rewarding to see that there are wonderfully creative students who didn’t previously know their talents as an artist,” says Grinnell. “They got to express themselves in ways they may not have previously expected.”

The class also relied on the service of Ann Gleason, an adjunct art and art history professor who acted as the artist-in-residence over the course of the month. Gleason taught hand-building techniques, moving to pinch pots and slab building before working one-on-one with students at the wheel.

Liner did mostly hand-building, creating bowls and mugs. She even went so far as to make an elephant figurine.

“The Interim itself was about trying new things. Pottery allows us to be a part of what we do,” says Liner.

Grinnell worked every day alongside the class, enjoying the meditative process of working with the clay.

“Working with clay to make pottery is a new way of learning, thinking and visualizing the world through the lens of texture and of aesthetics,” says Grinnell. “And it’s different — you can’t be good at it through force of will, you have to work and practice at it, but even if the pot doesn’t come out, the process of working with the clay is the experience.”

Liner says the experience of learning about and creating pottery made her more appreciative of art. “Visual art is one of the most important things in life because almost everything we use, consume and receive now is through the visual aesthetic whether it be TV, literature and social media,” she says. “It’s important that we not only see these visual things, but also see how they were made and built, how they’re used in society and how they affects those who use them.”

To: Wofford Staff and Faculty WoffordStaff@Wofford.Edu, Wofford Students WoffordStudents@Wofford.Edu

W

All members of the campus community - faculty, staff and students - are invited to attend a presentation of the Wofford's Quality Enhancement Plan (QEP) on Student Success.

Sessions will be held:

- Thursday, Feb. 23, 3:30-4:30 p.m., McMillan Theater, Campus Life Building
- Friday, Feb. 24, 3:30-4:30 p.m., McMillan Theater, Campus Life Building

Boyce Lawton, Beth Wallace and Carol Wilson will share the theoretical framework for the five-year plan, the components of the project and the specific student learning outcomes.

A reception will follow the presentation in the Campus Life game room.

New Faculty Mentoring Luncheon (Topic: Tenure)

Details: The topic for the Feb. 23, new faculty mentoring luncheon will be the tenure review process. Mike Sosulski, Provost of the College, and Kaye Savage, Associate Professor and Chair of Environmental Studies and Chair of the Committee on Non-Curricular Faculty Concerns (which is a portion of the Tenure Committee), will join us to explain what the process involves and what types of documents faculty might be expected to prepare for the Tenure Committee. In addition, colleagues who successfully completed the tenure process recently will join us to discuss how they prepared. As at most institutions, there are a number of questions regarding the tenure review process and hopefully this discussion will address many of those issues. This lunch series serves as a mentoring program for junior faculty but any faculty or staff member is welcome to attend. Lunches for faculty in their first and second year of employment are paid for by the Provost's Office; other faculty members who are attending can purchase lunch from the Faculty and Staff Dining Room or bring a bag lunch. Anyone who has a meeting at the 11 a.m. hour is welcome to join us after their meeting concludes.
