Rifle opens 2006-07 campaign at Ft. Benning October 4, 2006

FT. BENNING, Ga. -- The Wofford rifle team began its 2006-07 campaign, the fourth season of varsity competition, last weekend at the U.S. Army Marksmanship Unit Clinic in Ft. Benning, Ga. The Terriers and other teams at the clinic were trained by Olympic athletes, including the silver medalist at the 2006 Summer Olympics. All coaches also received instruction from Frank Briggs, the Marksmanship Unit's international rifle coach.

Wofford finished third out of the three participating schools in separate NCAA scoring rounds Saturday and Sunday. The Citadel sent a men's team and women's squad also to the event with its men's team claiming first place both days.

On Saturday during the 60-shot competition, the Terriers just missed a second-place result as they fired a 2096, three points behind The Citadel's women's squad. Sunday's match featured 40 shots per shooter.

Sophomore Rachel Senterfeit paced the Wofford effort both days, including a 558 Saturday. Also above 500, out of a possible 600, the first day were Beth Mellette with a 545 and Nikil Swamy with a 527. Rounding out the team score was a 466 by Michelle Boykin.

Sunday saw Senterfeit post a 367, while Mellette topped Swamy by one point, 345 to 344. Boykin rounded out the quartet with a 322.

Also attending the clinic as first-time shooters for the Terriers were James Koutroulias, Bradley Neff and Jordan Rawl.

Wofford will not attend the first Southeastern Air Rifle Conference (SEARC) match this weekend due to Homecoming but will compete next when it hosts SEARC 2 inside Andrews Field House Oct. 21.

Terrier rifle concludes fall in second place
December 5, 2006

CHARLESTON, S.C. -- Sophomore Rachel Senterfeit narrowly missed being the top individual in the final fall match as the Wofford rifle squad garnered a second-place finish against three teams from The Citadel last Saturday in Charleston, S.C.

Senterfeit posted a 561 (out of a possible 600) to finish one point behind the Bulldogs' Kevin Medert. The Terrier team score was also bolstered by a pair of 549s from Nikil Swamy and Beth Mellette. Mellette's score was a career-best result.

Rounding out the Wofford tallies was a 515 by Jordan Rawl.

The Terriers fired a 2174 as a team, trailing only the 2209 posted by The Citadel's No. 1 co-ed squad. The differential was the closest Wofford has been to the Bulldogs in its history.

The Citadel women placed third with a 2062, while its second co-ed team registered a 1994.

Wofford will return to action Jan. 20 with the fourth Southeastern Air Rifle Conference match of the season. The event will be hosted by Mercer in Macon, Ga.
