Phi Beta Kappa welcomes three Wofford student-athletes April 24, 2007

SPARTANBURG, S.C. -- Three members of Wofford's athletic teams, one former and two current, will join 25 other Wofford students in the latest Phi Beta Kappa class. The 28 student inductees will join Dr. Douglas E. Wood, class of 1990, at the convocation 11 a.m. Thursday in Leonard Auditorium in Main Building. The initiation of new members-in-course will then be held at 4 p.m. in the Papadopoulos Building on campus.

Phi Beta Kappa is the nation's most prestigious liberal arts honor society devoted to the principles of "friendship, morality and literature (or learning)." Wofford received its chapter in 1940 and is one of 262 four-year colleges across the country to have the right to induct new members. This year's trio will add to the growing list of Terrier student-athletes in Phi Beta Kappa and increase the overall total to 105.

Lauren Stephenson, a former member of the Terrier women's golf team and graduate of Wofford in 2006, joins the group. She was eligible this year because graduated seniors still have the chance to be initiated one year following graduation. Stephenson completed her Wofford tenure while majoring in English with a concentration on creative writing. She improved her stroke average each of her four seasons with the Terriers and recorded a team-leading 2-over par at the 2005 Draper Valley Invitational.

Jessica Connett, a member of the Wofford women's soccer team, is one of 23 inductees from the class of 2007. She capped her playing career with a second team All-Southern Conference honor this past fall after tallying a career-high four goals. She served as the Terriers' captain in each of her final two campaigns. In addition to her scoring abilities, Connett is one of just 10 players in school history to reach the double-digit assist plateau in her career.

Another member of the Wofford class of 2007, Russ Sandifer, is the other active Terrier student-athlete to be inducted into Phi Beta Kappa. Sandifer returned to the playing field for the Terriers this past fall after spending 2005-06 traveling abroad as Wofford's 21st Presidential International Scholar. He started 31 of 38 games in goal throughout his career and recorded a career-best 66 saves during his junior season of 2004.

Four Wofford teams earn APR accolades

SPARTANBURG, SC – Four Wofford College athletic teams received praise from the National Collegiate Athletic Association on Friday with public recognition awards for their latest Academic Progress Rate scores.

These teams posted multi-year APR scores in the top 10 percent of all squads in their respective sports. The public recognition awards are part of the broad Division I academic reform effort.

Wofford's football, men's tennis, women's tennis and women's soccer teams were the four Terrier squads recognized by the NCAA. The football team and both tennis squads were also honored for their high APR scores during the 2005-06 season.

The football team went 7-4 last year and finished third in the Southern Conference. The men's tennis team went 12-7 overall this spring while the women's tennis squad was 6-13.

The women's soccer team was 6-7-4 last fall.
