Wofford appoints new vice president for marketing and communications and new director of admission

Two strong internal candidates rose to the top of national searches and will now be serving Wofford College as the new vice president for marketing and communications and the new director of admission.

Jo Ann Mitchell Brasington '89 has been appointed vice president for marketing and communications. Brasington had been serving as interim vice president and senior director of editorial and creative. She has 30 years of journalism, marketing, public information, project management and creative experience, the past six of which have been on the marketing and communications team at Wofford College. In addition to a B.A. in English from Wofford, Brasington holds an M.A. in Journalism from the University of South Carolina.

“Jo Ann has many good ideas for stretching the college’s reach, improving internal communications and telling the college’s story in new and creative ways,” says Dr. Nayef Samhat, president. “She leads a strong marketing and communications team, and I look forward to working with them as we return to campus in the fall and more broadly share the value of the college’s residential liberal arts educational experience.”

Megan Tyler '14 has been selected as the college’s director of admission. She joined the college’s admission staff as a counselor in 2015, and for the past year she has served as senior associate director of admission. Among her responsibilities, she has directed the Wofford Scholars Program and has been the admission liaison to the First Year Orientation team, the Bonner Scholars Program and Entrepreneurship and Innovation. In addition to a B.S. in biology from Wofford, Tyler holds an M.Ed. in Higher Education Administration from Columbia College.

“Megan has provided great leadership since joining the admission staff five years ago,” says Brand Stille '86, vice president for enrollment. “She has been instrumental in growing applications by 60% and improving selectivity over that time as well. Her work ethic, knowledge of Wofford and higher education, and her commitment to assisting students in the college search process will continue to guide her success.”

How Did We Get Here? Monuments, Memory and Memorials

Date/Time: 7/28/2020 1:00:00 PM

Location: Zoom

Cost: Free

Details: Some of the statues and memorials of white supremacy are coming down or being removed from public display. Confederate statues and memorials, statues of Andrew Jackson, the Presidents carved into Mt. Rushmore, which is sacred land to the Lakota people, and others illustrate a white supremacist approach to memorializing US history. This teach-in will continue the AntiRacism 101 series by examining the history of racist statues and memorials in the US to help us understand the overwhelming call to remove these symbols and monuments to white supremacy. Panelists include Dr. Felice Knight, Assistant Professor of African American History at The Citadel, Dr. Kim Rostan,

Associate Professor of English at Wofford College, and Brad Steinecke, Assistant Director of Local History, Spartanburg Public Library System. This event includes an optional 30 minute discussion immediately following the 2 p.m. panel closing. RSVP at <https://bit.ly/ODIAntiracism101> before registration reaches capacity! Moving Forward: Honoring Memory by Renaming and Removing White Supremacy

Location: Zoom

Cost: Free

Details: The list is growing: Yale, Princeton, Georgetown, Duke, University of Mississippi, University of Oregon, University of Michigan, Furman University and, most recently, Clemson University. All have renamed buildings that once honored white supremacists. Racism operates on campuses across the nation. Black students, Indigenous students, and students of color are forced to study, eat, live and learn in buildings that are named after people who rejected the fact of their humanity. This Antiracism 101 teach-in presents three activists and scholars whose work has succeeded in renaming racist buildings on campuses: Jerad Greene, Associate Director for Multicultural Programs at Clemson, who played a central role in their renaming process; Brandon Inabinet, Associate Professor of Communication Studies at Furman, who's part of the Seeking Abraham project, a multilayered approach to addressing Furman's white supremacist history, which includes renaming buildings, erecting memorials across campus to honor notable Black people in Furman's history, and establishing antiracist scholarship and programming initiatives; and Derek Alderman, Professor of Geography at UT-Knoxville, whose extensive work on antiracist memorializing in public spaces has informed multiple re-naming projects across the country. This teach-in will culminate in a montage of images, curated by visual and performance artist and professor of Art, Jessica Scott-Felder, showing art that memorializes and celebrates Black life in the US. This event includes an optional 30 minute discussion immediately following the 2 p.m. panel closing. RSVP at <https://bit.ly/ODIAntiracism101> before registration reaches capacity! Anti-Racism Teach-In Series

Details: "In a racist society, it is not enough to be non-racist, we must be anti-racist." -Dr. Angela Y. Davis. Protests and rebellions are still taking place across the country in direct response to centuries of a train of abuses and usurpations designed to oppress communities of color, and Black communities in particular, which resulted in the police killings of Breonna Taylor, George Floyd, Rayshard Brooks, Tony McDade and too many others. The Office of Diversity & Inclusion (ODI) Anti-Racism Action Team, is excited to host the next events in our virtual Anti-Racism Teach-In Series. For detailed information about each session, see the daily event announcements. Please note, to ensure a safe space for all attendees, only those who register for each session will be allowed admittance to the respective event.

Memorandum

To: Faculty and Staff

From: Talicia I. Murphy, Interim Director of Student Activities and Campus Life

Date: July 7, 2020

Re: First 54 Calendar

The Office of Student Activities and Campus Life is beginning the initial planning for the upcoming First 54- the first 54 days of the academic year, starting Aug. 31 through Oct. 23. The First 54 also highlights Wofford's founding in 1854.

Research indicates that successes or failures during the first six weeks of a college student's experience may determine whether they will graduate from college. Therefore, it is very important to get them engaged in our community during this crucial time.

For the last four years, the Office of Student Activities and Campus Life has created a calendar of events hosted by our academic departments, athletic teams and chartered organizations. This calendar can assist faculty, staff and student leaders in selecting an appropriate date and time for their events. This cross-campus collaboration will engage students with the campus community and give them the chance to preview a wide variety of student organizations and academic opportunities.

A draft of the First 54 calendar can be found in the link provided (https://drive.google.com/file/d/1ehPHQX378rR0-f5LjD2rc_AIfpGNwK8/view?usp=sharing). It includes home sports as well as other organizational events.

Can I add your departmental and organizational events to our master calendar? Please send your information to Talicia Murphy at murphyti@wofford.edu if you would like to be added to the calendar. Please remember to also submit all of your events to the official campus online calendar at <http://calendar.wofford.edu/webevent/scripts/webevent.plx>.

- Name of the department, team or chartered organization hosting the event
- Name of event
- A brief description of the event
- Location
- Date
- Time
- Cost (if any)

While the Office of Student Activities and Campus Life wants to help promote your event through this calendar, remember that you are in charge of all aspects of your event, including, but not limited, to room reservations, staffing, set-up, clean-up and any additional marketing. If you need assistance, please contact John Blair, director of conference services, at blairji@wofford.edu. Also, the Office of Marketing and Communications can help you with promoting your event with posters or other items; simply fill out the OMC Project Request Form by going to wofford.edu/omc and click on “Project Request.”

Before the Class of 2024 arrives in August, First 54 flyers will be distributed to all of the residence halls and college buildings.

Please let me know if you have any questions. I look forward to hearing from you and your organizations through this collaborative effort.

How Did We Get Here? Monuments, Memory and Memorials

Date/Time: 7/28/2020 1:00:00 PM

Location: Zoom

Cost: Free

Details: Some of the statues and memorials of white supremacy are coming down or being removed from public display. Confederate statues and memorials, statues of Andrew Jackson, the Presidents carved into Mt. Rushmore, which is sacred land to the Lakota people, and others illustrate a white supremacist approach to memorializing US history. This teach-in will continue the AntiRacism 101 series by examining the history of racist statues and memorials in the US to help us understand the overwhelming call to remove these symbols and monuments to white supremacy. Panelists include Dr. Felice Knight, Assistant Professor of African American History at The Citadel, Dr. Kim Rostan, Associate Professor of English at Wofford College, and Brad Steinecke, Assistant Director of Local History, Spartanburg Public Library System. Moving Forward: Honoring Memory by Renaming and Removing White Supremacy

Date/Time: 7/30/2020 1:00:00 PM

Location: Zoom

Cost: Free

Details: The list is growing: Yale, Princeton, Georgetown, Duke, University of Mississippi, University of Oregon, University of Michigan, Furman University and, most recently, Clemson University. All have renamed buildings that once honored white supremacists. Racism operates on campuses across the nation. Black students, Indigenous students, and students of color are forced to study, eat, live and learn in buildings that are named after people who rejected the fact of their humanity. This Antiracism 101 teach-in presents three activists and scholars whose work has succeeded in renaming racist buildings on campuses: Jerad Greene, Associate Director for Multicultural Programs at Clemson, who played a central role in their renaming process; Brandon Inabinet, Associate Professor of Communication Studies at Furman, who's part of the Seeking Abraham project, a multilayered approach to addressing Furman's white supremacist history, which includes renaming buildings, erecting memorials across campus to honor notable Black people in Furman's history, and establishing antiracist scholarship and programming initiatives; and Derek Alderman, Professor of Geography at UT-Knoxville, whose extensive work on antiracist memorializing in public spaces has informed multiple re-naming projects across the country. This teach-in will culminate in a montage of images, curated by visual and performance artist and professor of Art, Jessica Scott-Felder, showing art that memorializes and celebrates Black life in the US. This event includes an optional 30 minute discussion immediately following the 2 p.m. panel

Anti-Racism Teach-In Series

Details: "In a racist society, it is not enough to be non-racist, we must be anti-racist." - Dr. Angela Y. Davis. Protests and rebellions are still taking place across the country in direct response to centuries of a train of abuses and usurpations designed to oppress communities of color, and Black communities in particular, which resulted in the police killings of Breonna Taylor, George Floyd, Rayshard Brooks, Tony McDade and too many others. The Office of Diversity & Inclusion (ODI) Anti-Racism Action Team, is excited to host the next events in our virtual Anti-Racism Teach-In Series. For detailed information about each session, see the daily event announcements. Please note, to ensure a safe space for all attendees, only those who register for each session will be allowed admittance to the respective event.

Subject: A Vision for Wofford in the World

Date: July 9, 2020 at 2:00 PM

To: Wofford Staff and Faculty WoffordStaff@Wofford.Edu, Wofford Students WoffordStudents@Wofford.Edu

Dear Wofford community,

The past month of focus on racial injustice has been humbling as college leaders have sought to listen, read and reflect on Wofford College's past, present and future. We have all learned a great deal thanks largely to the leadership of Wofford student and alumni leaders from the Black community and other people of color who have shared their experiences of pain. Our mission and core values include diversity and inclusiveness, yet progress has been slow and often not substantive enough to overcome the experiences that too many of our students, staff, faculty and alumni have lived.

Over the past few weeks, I have met with student leaders and I have talked with faculty, staff, graduates, trustees and community partners about a call to action. These conversations all led to the same conclusion: we must take the challenge posed by this national crisis and use it as an opportunity to build an even stronger Wofford for a world that will be very different in the years to come. In addition to reaffirming and strengthening our existing and new efforts, we must also move in ways that will sustain personal and institutional transformation, so our college truly becomes a diverse, welcoming and inclusive home to all.

A plan for immediate action followed by a process for institutional change are outlined below, but first I would like to thank those who have been working diligently in diversity, equity and inclusion for their time, energy and creativity. That we still have work to do is not a reflection on your efforts or of your support for student success. I encourage everyone to visit Wofford.edu/dei to view the updated website and to review the 2019 Diversity Report as a baseline for future improvement. Following progress through this annual report and the website are ways to assess the efficacy of our efforts in the near and long-term.

Immediate (Summer and Fall 2020) actions. We will:

- Provide anti-racism and anti-bias training for the campus community.
- Review Campus Safety procedures and commit to police-oriented anti-bias and anti-racism education.
- Create a new student marketing committee and schedule unconscious-bias training for the student committee and staff in the college's Office of Marketing and Communications.
- Incorporate anti-racism and anti-bias education into the FYI curriculum.
- Relocate the Back of the College memorial to a more visible location.
- Create a new Black Alumni website to support the group's history and tradition of excellence. Follow this with a new website to feature women's history.
- Recommit to eliminating implicit bias through the college's Search Advocate Program.
- Evaluate and develop new strategies for the recruitment of underrepresented students.
- Renew efforts to increase the number of NPHC organizations on campus.
- Engage academic departments in consideration of diversity in their existing

- Engage academic departments in consideration of diversity in their existing curricula and guide discussion of how best to incorporate diverse perspectives in curricula going forward.
- Support with internal funding the AAC&U Truth, Racial Healing and Transformation program.
- Sponsor a symposium that considers Wofford College and race relations.
- Engage a cohort of faculty in a yearlong workshop on inclusive pedagogy led by Teach.Equity.Now.
- Review the Student Handbook and disciplinary processes for the purpose of finding and removing biased policies or practices.

Envisioning Wofford for the World — a new strategic visioning process:

Even as we all commit ourselves to immediate changes, we must use the opportunity that this moment in history presents to carry forward not just conversation but action to build a stronger and more inclusive Wofford College. That starts with thinking broadly and deeply as a campus community about race, equity, diversity and inclusion. Seven years ago, when I arrived at Wofford, we developed, executed and implemented a strategic visioning process that was inclusive, thoughtful and innovative. That process led to ideas to transform Wofford in enrollment, curriculum, student experience, our physical campus and community governance. The results of the strategic vision process have been — thanks to the extraordinary generosity and hard work of so many — quite impressive. We have realized nearly all of our goals.

Thus, I believe we should and can replicate this process to generate thoughtful, aspirational and realizable ideas, programs and policies to strengthen our community around race, diversity, equity and inclusion for today and the future. The process will be designed around inclusive listening and engagement for all Wofford constituencies. To that end, I have organized a campus steering committee to review the strategic vision process and revise it to our current needs and timeframe. We will start in the coming weeks and work through the fall, offering regular committee updates throughout the semester with the goal of presenting a draft vision document to the Wofford community in February.

These groups will reflect on the history of the college and its present in order to imagine a future in which the changing demographic landscape and trends in higher education will have an increasing impact on our campus.

This new visioning process makes institutional diversity, equity and inclusion the full responsibility of the entire college community. It is our commitment to the future. And real and lasting progress will take the concerted and sustained efforts of us all.

In the coming weeks, please look for ways you can get involved in this new Wofford for the World strategic vision. We will have a busy fall, but I urge everyone to make the time to support our college's commitment to ending racism, oppression and injustice, wherever it may reside. In this we must succeed because our Wofford College has an important mission in this world, and we cannot truly fulfill that mission unless everyone in our community is valued.

Sincerely,

Nayef

Anti-Racism Teach-In Series

Details: "In a racist society, it is not enough to be non-racist, we must be anti-racist." ? Dr. Angela Y. Davis. Protests and rebellions are still taking place across the country in direct response to centuries of a train of abuses and usurpations designed to oppress communities of color, and Black communities in particular, which resulted in the police killings of Breonna Taylor, George Floyd, Rayshard Brooks, Tony McDade and too many others. The Office of Diversity & Inclusion (ODI) Anti-Racism Action Team, is excited to host the next events in our virtual Anti-Racism Teach-In Series. For detailed information about each session, see the daily event announcements. Please note, to ensure a safe space for all attendees, only those who register for each session will be allowed admittance to the respective event.

Date: July 13, 2020 at 2:57 PM
To: Wofford Staff and Faculty WoffordStaff@Wofford.Edu

Dear Colleagues,

I trust that you are well and finding ways to adjust to the uncertainty that seems to be our new normal. I appreciate the effort everyone is making to wear masks on campus and practice physical distancing and hand hygiene. We will continue to progress with caution toward August and the return of students to our campus. Talk with your supervisor about the best schedule for your office and space. Please visit Wofford.edu/WoffordTogether for the latest safety protocols and guidelines. You may also contact HumanResources@wofford.edu.

Although we are currently planning to return in the fall, we must consider a variety of contingencies. In order to be fiscally responsible during this time of uncertainty, the college will defer compensation pool increases until Jan. 1, 2021. Though at this time the college will implement the planned .5% increase in the retirement contribution. The compensation pool increases ultimately will be based on enrollment and our ability to teach and learn together on campus during the academic year. This will impact everyone on campus.

The shared commitment we all have to our community is a strength of Wofford College. That shared commitment applies to coronavirus as well as the anguish, pain and anxiety all too often experienced by our Black communities and other people of color on campus and beyond. In response, we must all commit ourselves to be the type of colleagues and friends who are willing to listen and learn with empathy and understanding. Please consider participating in some way in the Vision for Wofford in the World, a new strategic visioning process centered on race, diversity, equity and inclusion on our campus. We all work for an institution committed to educating students to make lasting change in the world, and this aspirational and attainable plan has the potential to make Wofford a better place for all. Also consider joining Anti-Racism Teach-In Series events (listed in the Daily Announcements). Finally, this has been a stressful time for many. Remember faculty and staff have access to a 24/7 Mental Health Crisis Line by calling 864-597-4393.

If you have questions about the plan to return to campus in the fall or about the new strategic visioning process, please join our Faculty and Staff Virtual Town Hall at 4 p.m. on Thursday, July 16. Send questions to WoffordNews@wofford.edu, and register for the event HERE.

Again, thank you for your commitment to Wofford College and each other. Stay well.

Memorandum

To: Wofford Faculty and Staff
From: David Beacham, Senior VP, Chair of the Commencement Committee
Re: Commencement Weekend
Date: July 15, 2020

We hope this message finds you and your family healthy and well.

Unfortunately, this message is to inform you of the need to cancel the college's Commencement weekend plans due to the recent build-up of coronavirus cases in South Carolina. This determination was made based on the best data available regarding COVID-19. None of the events originally scheduled for Aug. 21 and 22 will take place.

The college remains committed to recognizing the Class of 2020. Planning for a Spring 2021 celebration is underway.

The decision to cancel August's events was made while monitoring the virus and reviewing guidelines developed by national and state public health agencies. The college recognizes its role in keeping the Wofford family and the larger Spartanburg community safe and as healthy as possible. Hosting such events at this time would be unwise.

We regret not being able to celebrate the Class of 2020 on campus this year.

Subject: Converse Draper retirement
Date: July 16, 2020 at 12:29 PM
To: Wofford Staff and Faculty WoffordStaff@Wofford.Edu

Converse Draper, utility crew supervisor, will be retiring on July 24. He has been at the college since 1994 and was promoted to supervisor in 2004. Since then, he has been on speed dial for the many faculty and staff who counted on him and his crew to set up, take down and generally make events run smoothly. Homecoming, Family Weekend, Commencement, Honors Convocation, athletics events, building renovations, groundbreakings... Converse and his crew have been a secret to success behind theses and so many other special events.

Because of social distancing requirements, the college will honor Converse at a later date. He was named the Distinguished Service Award recipient to the 2020 Wofford College Athletics Hall of Fame class, so he will be honored with that group as well.

Jeff Burney, who has been serving the college as residence hall housekeeping supervisor, has been promoted to director of housekeeping and event setups. This is a new position in which both housekeeping crews — administrative and residence halls — will report to Jeff. Mitch Humphries will continue to supervise administrative housekeeping services, and the college's facilities team will look for someone to supervise residential housekeeping. The college's utility crew also will report to Jeff.

Please congratulate both Converse and Jeff.

How Did We Get Here? Monuments, Memory and Memorials

Date/Time: 7/28/2020 1:00:00 PM

Location: Zoom

Cost: Free

Details: Please note the update in required action before this teach-in Some of the statues and memorials of white supremacy are coming down or being removed from public display. Confederate statues and memorials, statues of Andrew Jackson, the Presidents carved into Mt. Rushmore, which is sacred land to the Lakota people, and others illustrate a white supremacist approach to memorializing US history. This teach-in will continue the AntiRacism 101 series by examining the history of racist statues and memorials in the US to help us understand the overwhelming call to remove these symbols and monuments to white supremacy. Panelists include Dr. Felice Knight, Assistant Professor of African American History at The Citadel, Dr. Kim Rostan, Associate Professor of English at Wofford College, and Brad Steinecke, Assistant Director of Local History, Spartanburg Public Library System. This event includes an optional 30 minute discussion immediately following the 2:00PM panel closing. RSVP at <https://bit.ly/ODIAntiracism101> before registration reaches capacity! Required action before attending How Did We Get Here? Monuments, Memory and Memorials includes reading the following: (1) "How the US Got So Many Confederate Monuments" <https://www.history.com/news/how-the-u-s-got-so-many-confederate-monuments>; (2) "The Costs of the Confederacy" <https://www.smithsonianmag.com/history/costs-confederacy-special-report-180970731/>; (3) Article that describes the process of creating memorials in Germany, the US and in South America:

Moving Forward: Honoring Memory by Renaming and Removing White Supremacy

Date/Time: 7/30/2020 1:00:00 PM

Location: Zoom

Cost: Free

Details: Please note the update in required action before this teach-in The list is growing: Yale, Princeton, Georgetown, Duke, University of Mississippi, University of Oregon, University of Michigan, Furman University and, most recently, Clemson University. All have renamed buildings that once honored white supremacists. Racism operates on campuses across the nation. Black students, Indigenous students, and students of color are forced to study, eat, live and learn in buildings that are named after people who rejected the fact of their humanity. This Antiracism 101 teach-in presents three activists and scholars whose work has succeeded in renaming racist buildings on campuses: Jerad Greene, Associate Director for Multicultural Programs at Clemson, who played a central role in their renaming process; Brandon Inabinet, Associate Professor of Communication Studies at Furman, who's part of the Seeking Abraham project, a multilayered approach to addressing Furman's white supremacist history, which includes renaming buildings, erecting memorials across campus to honor notable Black people in Furman's history, and establishing antiracist scholarship and programming initiatives; and Derek Alderman, Professor of Geography at UT-Knoxville, whose extensive work on antiracist memorializing in public spaces has informed multiple re-naming projects across the country. This teach-in will culminate in a montage of images, curated by visual and performance artist and professor of Art, Jessica Scott-Felder, showing art that memorializes and celebrates Black life in the US. This event includes an optional 30 minute discussion immediately following the 2:00PM panel closing. RSVP at <https://bit.ly/ODIAntiracism101> before registration reaches capacity! How Did We Get Here? Monuments, Memory and Memorials

Location: Zoom

Cost: Free

Details: Please note the update in required action before this teach-in Some of the statues and memorials of white supremacy are coming down or being removed from public display. Confederate statues and memorials, statues of Andrew Jackson, the Presidents carved into Mt. Rushmore, which is sacred land to the Lakota people, and others illustrate a white supremacist approach to memorializing US history. This teach-in will continue the AntiRacism 101 series by examining the history of racist statues and memorials in the US to help us understand the overwhelming call to remove these symbols and monuments to white supremacy. Panelists include Dr. Felice Knight, Assistant Professor of African American History at The Citadel, Dr. Kim Rostan, Associate Professor of English at Wofford College, and Brad Steinecke, Assistant Director of Local History, Spartanburg Public Library System. This event includes an optional 30 minute discussion immediately following the 2:00PM panel closing. RSVP at <https://bit.ly/ODIAntiracism101> before registration reaches capacity! Required action before attending How Did We Get Here? Monuments, Memory and Memorials includes reading the following: (1) "How the US Got So Many Confederate Monuments" <https://www.history.com/news/how-the-u-s-got-so-many-confederate-monuments>; (2) "The Costs of the Confederacy" <https://www.smithsonianmag.com/history/costs-confederacy-special-report-180970731/>; (3) Article that describes the process of creating memorials in Germany, the US and in South America: <https://euronememories.net/magazine/the-memorials-vernacular-arc-between-berlins->

Moving Forward: Honoring Memory by Renaming and Removing White Supremacy

Date/Time: 7/30/2020 1:00:00 PM

Location: Zoom

Cost: Free

Details: Please note the update in required action before this teach-in The list is growing: Yale, Princeton, Georgetown, Duke, University of Mississippi, University of Oregon, University of Michigan, Furman University and, most recently, Clemson University. All have renamed buildings that once honored white supremacists. Racism operates on campuses across the nation. Black students, Indigenous students, and students of color are forced to study, eat, live and learn in buildings that are named after people who rejected the fact of their humanity. This Antiracism 101 teach-in presents three activists and scholars whose work has succeeded in renaming racist buildings on campuses: Jerad Greene, Associate Director for Multicultural Programs at Clemson, who played a central role in their renaming process; Brandon Inabinet, Associate Professor of Communication Studies at Furman, who's part of the Seeking Abraham project, a multilayered approach to addressing Furman's white supremacist history, which includes renaming buildings, erecting memorials across campus to honor notable Black people in Furman's history, and establishing antiracist scholarship and programming initiatives; and Derek Alderman, Professor of Geography at UT-Knoxville, whose extensive work on antiracist memorializing in public spaces has informed multiple re-naming projects across the country. This teach-in will culminate in a montage of images, curated by visual and performance artist and professor of Art, Jessica Scott-Felder, showing art that memorializes and celebrates Black life in the US. This event includes an optional 30 minute discussion immediately following the 2:00PM panel closing. RSVP at <https://bit.ly/ODIAntiracism101> before registration reaches capacity! Required action before attending Moving Forward: Honoring Memory by Renaming and Removing White Supremacy includes reading the following: (1) Doreen Garner and Kenya: "White Man on a Pedastal" <https://art21.org/watch/new-york-close-up/doreen-garner-sculpts-our-trauma/> (Trigger warning: graphic content); (2) Furman University's Seeking Abraham project: <https://www.furman.edu/about/wp-content/uploads/sites/2/2019/11/Seeking-Abraham-Second-Edition.pdf>; (3) Derek Alderman, Jordan P Brasher and Owen J. Re: Preparing for the Fall Semester
Date: July 30, 2020

As we prepare to return to campus for the fall semester, many people have questions. To address those, Nayef Samhat and members of the president's cabinet as well as representatives from the working group for the return to campus will hold a virtual town hall at 4 p.m., Tuesday, Aug. 4. Please register in advance for the town hall at wofford.zoom.us/webinar/register/WN_mrxtSK2PRDeqVNb9x5NWdg. This is a great opportunity to hear more about preparations and ask any questions you may have. Email questions to WoffordNews@wofford.edu.

The town hall also will provide information on how you can limit the spread of COVID-19 by voluntarily submitting the Wellness Center's confidential COVID-19 Reporting Form to report exposure, testing and positive test results. The college will use contact tracing to reduce the spread of the virus.

If you are reporting an exposure or positive test to the Wellness Center, your next step will be to review the South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control (DHEC) guidelines on how to respond to common workplace scenarios involving COVID-19.

Remember that the Wellness Center continues to offer telemedicine appointments to reduce contact with anyone who may be ill. Call the Wellness Center at 864-597-4370 if you have questions.

UPDATED Moving Forward: Honoring Memory by Renaming and Removing White Supremacy

Date/Time: 2020-07-30 01:00 PM

Location: Zoom

Cost: Free

Details: Please note the update in required action before this teach-in The list is growing: Yale, Princeton, Georgetown, Duke, University of Mississippi, University of Oregon, University of Michigan, Furman University and, most recently, Clemson University. All have renamed buildings that once honored white supremacists. Racism operates on campuses across the nation. Black students, Indigenous students, and students of color are forced to study, eat, live and learn in buildings that are named after people who rejected the fact of their humanity. This Antiracism 101 teach-in presents three activists and scholars whose work has succeeded in renaming racist buildings on campuses: Jerad Greene, Associate Director for Multicultural Programs at Clemson, who played a central role in their renaming process; Brandon Inabinet, Associate Professor of Communication Studies at Furman, who's part of the Seeking Abraham project, a multilayered approach to addressing Furman's white supremacist history, which includes renaming buildings, erecting memorials across campus to honor notable Black people in Furman's history, and establishing antiracist scholarship and programming initiatives; and Derek Alderman, Professor of Geography at UT-Knoxville, whose extensive work on antiracist memorializing in public spaces has informed multiple re-naming projects across the country. This teach-in will culminate in a montage of images, curated by visual and performance artist and professor of Art, Jessica Scott-Felder, showing art that memorializes and celebrates Black life in the US. This event includes an optional 30 minute discussion immediately following the 2:00PM panel closing. RSVP at

<https://bit.ly/ODIAntiracism101> before registration reaches capacity! Required action before attending Moving Forward: Honoring Memory by Renaming and Removing White Supremacy includes reading the following: (1) Doreen Garner and Kenya: "White Man on a Pedestal"

Wofford's Title IX and Bias Incident Response Team is still available

Details: In light of the recent increased violence and racism against Black members of our society, Wofford's Title IX and Bias Incident Response Teams remind our community members that our Discrimination and Harassment Policy and Sexual and Gender-based Misconduct Policy can apply to online and off-campus discrimination and harassment. Team members also can assist reporting parties in accessing various resources and supportive measures. Reports may be submitted through the online reporting forms on myWofford or by contacting Amanda Estabrook, Wofford's Title IX coordinator and interim Bias Incident Response Team coordinator, at estabrookar@wofford.edu. Find more information about Wofford's policies at www.wofford.edu/administration/title-ix and <https://www.wofford.edu/about/diversity-and-inclusion/programs-and-resources>.

Olin Building Power Shutdown

Details: A power shutdown for Olin will occur Tuesday, Aug. 11, beginning at 7 a.m., and will continue for most of that day. Duke Energy will be changing the transformer that serves the building. During this shutdown Wightman and Lesesne Residence Halls will have power but will be without cooling. The parking lot will also be closed for a period of time that morning so a crane truck can access the location. Olin does have a generator that serves IT communications so we hope to have no loss of connectivity across campus.

Anti-Racism Teach-In Series

Details: "In a racist society, it is not enough to be non-racist, we must be anti-racist." - Dr. Angela Y. Davis. Protests and rebellions are still taking place across the country in direct response to centuries of a train of abuses and usurpations designed to oppress communities of color, and Black communities in particular, which resulted in the police killings of Breonna Taylor, George Floyd, Rayshard Brooks, Tony McDade and too many others. The Office of Diversity & Inclusion (ODI) Anti-Racism Action Team, is excited to host the next events in our virtual Anti-Racism Teach-In Series. For detailed information about each session, see the daily event announcements. Please note, to ensure a safe space for all attendees, only those who register for each session will be allowed admittance to the respective event.

Attend the Convergence International Conference

Details: As the world has changed in dramatic, unprecedented ways in 2020 due to COVID-19, social distancing, and the closure of college and university campuses, the need to support students' religious, secular, and spiritual identities (RSSIs) remains, and perhaps is more pressing than ever. Wofford College is continuing our ongoing partnership with Convergence by offering ten spaces for students, staff and faculty to attend the CONVERGENCE International Conference for Religious, Secular, and Spiritual Identities. The online conference is August 3-5. You may attend one, two, or all three days. Information Here: <https://convergenceoncampus.org/international-conference/> Register Here: <https://convergenceoncampus.wufoo.com/forms/w8ho489Ocn16jz/>. Check the box requesting a "full scholarship." Write: "Wofford College" in the comment box at the bottom of the registration form. Sponsored by The Office of the Chaplain, The Associate Provost for Curriculum and Co-Curriculum, and The Department of Religion.
